repatriation

When a death occurs away from home, often the family's wishes are to return their loved one to their home of origin.

Repatriation requires co-ordination and adherence to varied national and international laws, airline regulations and local customs. Davis Funerals has the expertise, experience, and resources to accomplish dignified repatriation and shipping, meeting the needs of both families and clients.

As one of the largest firms in Auckland and New Zealand, we have been involved for many years with repatriation both to or from many countries worldwide. Our experienced staff are available 24 hours a day 7 days a week to assist with your enquiries.

We will liaise directly with embassies, consulates, travel insurers and airlines on your behalf to provide a prompt and efficient service.

Davis Funerals has access to a network of funeral service providers throughout New Zealand and overseas. This enables us to assist with repatriations to or from any destination.

Requirements differ between countries but we will ensure all legalities are complied with and the appropriate documentation prepared. Timeframes will often depend on co-operation of embassies and consulates. These are some of the usual details we will require to commence arrangements.

- Full family details for registration of the death with Internal Affairs
- The deceased's passport
- Name and address of consignee or receiving funeral home
- Travel insurance details

Our client's families also take comfort in the knowledge that their loved ones will be prepared for travel by fully trained and qualified embalmers. This will ensure family and friends are able to say their goodbyes upon arrival at the final destination.

Regrettably, return airfares are not able to be redeemed for repatriation in the case of a death.
